Translate the following texts into Farsi

1. I DO IT, you do it, even the ancient Greeks did it. Traveling for pleasure, traveling to experience new places and events, traveling to relax and get away from it all- in other words, tourism. (1)

2. Ever since man first emerged from his cave-dwelling, it seems he felt the urge to travel. But tourism had to wait for the civilization of ancient Greece before it really got moving. The Olympic Games of 776 BC were the first international - tourist event, with people traveling from many countries to watch and take part.(1.5)

3. Of course, if you want to travel from A to B, a good road is always an advantage, and we have a lot to thank the Romans for here. (1)

4. During the heyday of the Roman Empire they built thousands of roads. Some of the first people to take advantage of these roads were religious travelers visiting cathedrals, shrines, or holy sites - the word 'holiday'; after all, - originally comes from 'holy day'. Pilgrims like Geoffrey Chaucer would tell each other stories to entertain themselves on the road. (1.5)
